Find it at: www.lib.monash.edu.au/databases/

MathSciNet contains:

- references and reviews of articles from the American Mathematical Society's printed publications Mathematical Reviews and Current Mathematical Publications including pure mathematics, statistics, computer science, operations research and econometrics.

Use MathSciNet to find:

- references and reviews of articles from 1,800 journals, conference proceedings, and books
- monthly updates (data for Mathematical Review)
- weekly updates (data for Current Mathematical Publications)
- links to full-text documents where available to Monash users
- a variety of search options including author, title and mathematics subject classification (MSC)
- coverage from 1940 to present.

Tips:

- The wildcard character is the asterisk (*).
- Enter the author's name in the format last name, first initial.
- And, or, not can be used.
- Within any field (eg. Title, Anywhere) phrase searching is assumed if you do not enter and, or, not.
- Hyphenated words should be searched as a phrase.
- Searches are not case-sensitive.
- The mathematics subject classification can be searched by using the initial 2 or 3 digits of a classification eg. 62 or 62N (Statistics: 62, Engineering statistics: 62N).
- On the search results page, the Article link will take you to full-text documents where available to Monash users.
